A MESSAGE FROM THE CONFERENCE CHAIR

The Journal of the Advanced Practitioner in Oncology (JADPRO) has brought the advanced practitioner relevant and practice-changing clinical updates since 2010. We are extremely excited to offer our first annual educational symposium, JADPRO LIVE: Transforming Oncology Practice, which brings together renowned faculty and a diverse agenda to educate the advanced practitioner on today’s practice issues. I invite you to visit sunny St. Petersburg, Florida, and explore new strategies to improve the care of patients with cancer. Join the discussions regarding pertinent legislative issues impacting the care provided by advanced practitioners. Enjoy the opportunity to network with your peers and add to your knowledge and skill base. JADPRO LIVE will present key issues in practice in a variety of teaching settings, from intimate to classroom style. Bring your issues to the roundtables and be heard! We look forward to seeing you at the first annual JADPRO LIVE conference!

THE EVOLVING PRACTICE OF ONCOLOGY

THE COLLABORATIVE PRACTICE

ASCO PROJECTS A SHORTFALL OF ONCOLOGISTS IN THE NEXT DECADE:

- Demand for visits to oncologists will increase 48% by 2020.
- Supply will rise by only 14% by 2020.
- A doubling of the number of Americans 65 years and older and an 81% increase in people living with, or surviving, cancer will drive this demand.

RESULTS OF THE ASCO STUDY OF COLLABORATIVE PRACTICE ARRANGEMENTS

Designed to address the workforce shortage by exploring collaborative practice models between oncologists and APs

- Expanded use of Advanced Practitioners (NPs, PAs, CNSs, and other advanced degree nurses) has the potential to extend the supply of oncologist services.

- Advanced Practitioners (APs) are already working in all practice types:
  - Community practice
  - Hospital-owned practice
  - Academic practice

- 58% of physicians currently employ APs in their practice.

- 93% of patients who are treated by an AP are extremely satisfied with the service that they receive.

Taken together, these findings provide strong support for the inclusion of APs in oncology practices.

In the 3 Models of Collaborative Practice, APs either:

- Routinely see patients independent of the physician, with a physician present in the office suite

- Always see patients in conjunction with the physician

- See patients completely independent of the physician. Patients are assigned to the AP and not to an oncologist.

Model #1 is the prevalent model. This model allows practices to MAXIMIZE REIMBURSEMENT, an important consideration for today's oncology practice.

Conclusions:

1. Patients are extremely satisfied with the care they receive from APs.

2. There is a 19% increase in productivity when the AP works with all physicians in a practice.

3. Reimbursement economics drive the selection of the collaborative practice model.

4. Both physicians and APs are extremely satisfied with the collaborative practice model.
